

Council Supports USPS Proposal, Voting Paper Trail, Health Plan

by Sandy Smith

The Greenbelt Post Office was the primary topic at the April 26 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council. It will again be an agenda item up for decision at the May 10 meeting. Timothy Haney, district manager of the Capital District of the U.S. Postal Service, and other staff members were at the meeting to describe the two alternatives for the location and services of the post office in Greenbelt.

Also at the meeting council reviewed recommendations to add a paper trail to the voting process in time for the next election, discussed a proposed shift of funding from Eleanor Roosevelt to DuVal High School and was briefed on what council viewed as an attractive retirement health savings plan for city employees.

Post Office

After years of discussion, negotiation and planning, the choices for postal service in Greenbelt come down to two basic alternatives, Timothy Haney explained to councilmembers and citizens in attendance at the meeting. The postal service can maintain a full-service retail operation in Roosevelt Center and move only carrier and distribution services to the new upcoming facility at Hanover Parkway and Glen Ora Drive. The other option is to move all of the existing operations to the new site and work with the community to identify a potential site for a contract postal unit in or around Roosevelt Center.

Haney said that the city’s request that the postal service maintain retail operations at both locations was not economically feasible based on the level and volume of business in the Roosevelt location and that anticipated for the new facility. Haney was sympathetic with the desire to provide for customers’ needs and was looking for an innovative way to have both a full-scale state-of-the art facility at Hanover and Ora Glen and maintain essential customers services in old Greenbelt.

His solution was a Contract Postal Unit (CPU), which he explained in detail. The CPU is a partnership between the postal service and a local business, which agrees to install and operate a modular postal unit. The CPU provides essentially all of the retail services in a postal facility. Thus, customers can buy all of the usual services and products, from stamps to shipping. Only postal boxes would not be available at the CPU.

Haney said that there are numerous benefits to the retailer who adds a CPU to an existing business. Postal customers would bring more traffic to the establishment, with resulting increase in sales from other products. In addition, the postal service pays the retailer a percentage of the business generated.

The CPU is a system ready-to-go, he said. It’s self-contained

Public Works Staff Stretched Thin as City Facilities Grow

by Thomas X. White

The Greenbelt City Council’s fifth worksession on the Fiscal Year 2005 budget on Wednesday, April 28 dealt with the Greenbelt Public Works Department. Public Works Director Kenny Hall, using a department “tag team” approach, provided council with an up-to-date assessment of the department’s budget, “strictly covering existing services” and a few “proposed service changes” in the area of waste disposal and the yard waste special trash programs.

Other team members participating were Bill Phelan, assistant director of public works; Carolyn Clemens, superintendent of operations; and Cindy Murray, recycling coordinator. Like their counterparts in the other city departments, they had a requisite Power Point® presentation but it was interspersed with each key staff member taking the lead on specific projects and programs depending on his/her area of responsibility and expertise.

For those who like what they see happening around town, the worksession was a good review of how the public works team takes care of our business, maintains our facilities, keeps us green in more ways than one and at the same time responds to a variety of requests for services from citizens, other city departments and community organizations.

The manager’s proposed budget has them doing these things with the same staff complement as the current year’s budget ($2.7 full time equivalents) with a modest increase in public works salaries of $22,300. Overall public works expenditures are up only $108,700 for FY05 over FY04.

For the second year in a row, the city manager has not funded a request for a skilled labor position on the facilities maintenance staff. The department is looking for someone who would have the capability of responding to a wide variety of technical maintenance issues and repair requests. The recommended position would be slotted at the Grade 9 level (about $40,000 to $50,000).

In support of the request, Superintendent of Operations Carolyn Clemens outlined in a March 1, 2004 departmental memo the number of city facilities that have come on line over the past 45 years, with no additions being made to the two positions (facilities maintenance manager and helper) with respon-

Annexation Issue Prevents Metroland Suit Settlement

by James Giese

Nearly a month following the cut-off of negotiations between the Greenbelt City Council and representatives of Metroland LLC over a settlement of a city appeal challenging the approval process for the concept plan for the Greenbelt Station, the council has received a second letter from Attorney Norman Rivera which appears to close the door even tighter.

Rivera cites the council’s wish to annex that part of the proposed development located outside city boundaries as the principal reason. The unincorporated southern part (South Core) of Greenbelt station is adjacent to Berwyn Heights and College Park as well as Greenbelt.

The northern part, the Greenbelt Metro station property, is already within the city limits. The city’s appeal of the county’s approval of a concept plan for Greenbelt Station is now before

Rivera’s Letter to Mayor Davis

The following is Rivera’s letter of April 30 addressed to Davis.

Dear Ms. Davis:

This is to relay to you that my clients had wished to settle the Greenbelt Station case at one of our three scheduled hearings. Regrettably, the issues to be discussed became untenable especially in terms of the proposed annexation for the South Core. It is uncomfortable, to say the least, for my client to be in a position where the municipalities surrounding the project have common but conflicting goals, including the Court of Special Appeals. The city’s litigation has been delaying further progress of the proposed development and, if successful, could cause further delay.

Mayor Judith Davis commented that she hated to say negotiations between the city and Metroland are over but it sounds pretty bad from the city’s point of view. She expected the council to consider the matter further in the future.

Mishkan Torah Choir Sings At Arlington Cemetery

by Jordan Choper

On Sunday afternoon, April 25, the Mishkan Torah Choir participated in a memorial service honoring the life achievement of British General Orde Wingate, at the amphitheater at Arlington Cemetery. Wingate had a very influential role in the formation of the Haganah, the precursor of the current Israel Defense Force in mandated Palestine in the late 1930s. His activities were not appreciated by the British High Command and he was sent to Eritrea, in 1940. In 1941 Wingate was sent to work behind the Japanese lines in what was then Burma. There he formed and led the Chindits, a clandestine force composed of British and Indian soldiers who attacked the Japanese supply trains and roads. Wingate died in a plane crash while flying over the Himalaya mountains. Since the majority on the plane were Americans and it was impossible to identify who was who, all of the bodies recovered were buried at Arlington.

Mishkan Torah's Choir sang in Yiddish, Hebrew and English in three-part harmony. The choir is led by Becky Silverstein. It is more of a concert choir than one that officiates at services. Its repertoire is a mixture of Judaic liturgical, folk and popular music in Yiddish, Hebrew, Ladino and English. They will be in concert on Father's Day, June 20, at Mishkan Torah.

The Mishkan Torah Choir performed for a memorial service for British General Orde Wingate at the Arlington Cemetery amphitheater on April 25.

Greenbelt Golden Agers enjoyed the view of Chautauqua Institution and Chautauqua Lake, New York, from the front porch of the Athenaeum Hotel. That’s Lorrie Moran, the three-day trip’s organizer, on the far right. While visiting Chautauqua, the group got to see the outside of the Miller Cottage, the oldest cottage there. It was built by Lewis Miller, one of the founders of Chautauqua and the great-grandfather of News Review Editor Mary Lou (Miller) Williamson. The seniors also visited the hometown of actress Lucille Ball (her real name) where they visited the Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz Museum. They saw the family home in Jamestown, N.Y., at the time of her birth, her childhood home in neighboring Celoron, Jamestown high school where she attended until age 15 and the family cemetery where she is buried. Also on the tour were the Sugar Shack and Johnson Estates Winery on the shores of Lake Erie and a boat ride and pizza lunch aboard the Summer Wind on Lake Chautauqua.

Manuel Pereira

Manuel Pereira died unexpectedly of a stroke on March 26, 2004, at Doctors Community Hospital in Lanham. He was 58. He is survived by his wife Nancy Boardman and sons Jaime and Miguel Pereira, as well as his mother and sister in Portugal. Nancy and their sons recently returned from Olhao, Portugal, where Manuel was laid to rest with his father, who died a year and a half ago.

Manuel was born in the Algarve region of southern Portugal and moved to Greenbelt with his family about 20 years ago. He graduated from the University of Genoa in Italy in 1976 with a dual engineering degree in naval architecture and marine engineering.

Subsequently, he and Nancy moved to Lisbon, Portugal where their two sons were born. There he became a highly regarded inspector of ships and boats for the government agency responsible for the safety of all the civilian fleet in Portuguese waters. He was also chosen to be the Portuguese delegate at International Maritime Organization meetings in their London headquarters.

Upon moving to Greenbelt he continued in this profession as a consultant. During his years in Greenbelt he was an avid follower of his sons' numerous activities in the community. From their years as Little League baseball players, to Boys and Girls Club basketball and soccer teams, to his co-founding of the Comets, the first National Capital Soccer League team in Greenbelt, on which Miguel played for seven years, Manuel rarely missed a game. In Jaime's high school years at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, Manuel enjoyed the soccer games and took pride in Jaime's participation as a percussionist in the school's wind ensemble under the direction of Sally Wagner.

He came to have a special fondness for Greenbelt and its natural beauty and could often be seen walking the family dog, Scamper, around Greenbelt Lake, in Boxwood Village and in the Roosevelt Center area. There was more time for this after his sons graduated from high school, as Miguel is currently pursuing a Ph.D. in bio-chemistry at the University of Michigan and Jaime recently graduated from New York University.

There will be a memorial service for Manuel at Paint Branch Unitarian Universalist Church at a yet undetermined date later this summer.

PJ Siegel Memorial

Friends, family, colleagues and associates of PJ Siegel are invited to gather together to share stories and fond memories of her life at a memorial service being held in her honor at the residence of her twin, Marc Siegel. The memorial will be held at 16 Maplewood Court in Greenbelt on Saturday, May 15, at 1 p.m. PJ Siegel died on January 14, 2004; the date of this memorial service would have been her 45th birthday.

Congratulations to Senior Community Planner Terri Hrubl and husband Bob on the birth of twin girls. Megan and Paige were born April 10, 2004, weighing in at 5 lbs. 10 oz. and 5 lbs. 1 oz. The twins have a big brother, Calvin, who turned two the same week they arrived.

Greenbelters husband and wife, Ingrid Cowan and Ole Hasse, will participate in the Opera Theatre of Northern Virginia's performance "Nancy" on May 14 and 16 in Arlington. A recently completed work, the opera showcases the triumphant and tragic life of a daughter of the Randolphs of Virginia. For directions and ticket information call 703-528-1433 or visit www.novaopera.org.

Congratulations to Esi Abban, who has been chosen to participate in Salisbury University's gospel choir. She is the daughter of Kwame Abban and Esther Dadzie of Greenbelt and a 2001 graduate of Duval High School. She is currently a sophomore majoring in respiratory therapy.

Barbara Tyroler, Greenbelt artist, is one of the digital artists featured this month at Montpelier Cultural Arts Center in Laurel.

At last week's Pro Choice March in Washington, D.C., Greenbelter Esther Webb her daughter, who was visiting from

Utah, participated along with a million and a half others in a demonstration supporting the right of women to make their own reproductive choices. According to Webb, who was in a wheelchair, "the march was very peaceful." Webb also said that this march was similar to that of the Million Mom March in that there was a mix of young people and people who had never participated in a march before. "The difference," she said, "with this march was the single-mindedness of the crowd. They were so united in what they believed."

Webb said she saw other Greenbelters at the march including Marge Owens and Donna Hofmeister. She also saw a banner for the Paint Branch Unitarian Universalist Church but could not tell how many participants they had.

An inclusive congregation!

Many messengers have been sent,
but there has always been just one message.

"And We did not send any apostle before you (O Muhammed) but We revealed to him that there is none who has the right to be worshipped but I (God) so worship Me (alone and none else)."

– The Holy Qur'an, 21:25

Muslims believe that Prophet Muhammed (peace be upon him) was the last in a long line of prophets who were sent to guide mankind. Twenty-five of these prophets are specifically named in the Qur'an, including Noah, Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, Moses and Jesus. Though they came at different times to different lands and people, all were sent with signs of their divine inspiration and the same message – There is no one worthy of worship but one God. that of possible annexation of the South Core of this project. Settlement based on that term alone was not practical from a political perspective, nor would this have resolved any of the other site plan issues. Therefore, we regrettably were not able to maintain that term as a condition of settlement. We do however, maintain open lines of communication between the City and ourselves and will continue to do so, as we pursue the development of the project. Obviously, the North Core will stay within the City of Greenbelt corporate limits and you will derive a great deal of benefits, in terms of the tax generation and perhaps, more importantly the benefits of a premier mixed-use transit oriented development within the City limits. This is a project that has regional implications and benefits and I think that the City should be as pleased as we are to have such a project in its midst.

Other aspects of the settlement agreement, notably site plan and landscaping approval, also were of concern to the County who still maintains zoning and subdivision authority and it may have been difficult to satisfy the goals of your municipality as well as the County, which has to look at the greater good of the County and the region. In sum, we apologize for the fact that we could not come to an agreement at the meeting on Monday, April 26, 2004. However, we are hopeful that such an accommodation can occur in the future. Please do not hesitate to contact me for any clarification of the above, or if you wish to meet to discuss any other issue.

Sincerely,

and can be designed in many configurations. The postal service provides training and publicizes the location to notify customers. Haney also mentioned benefits to customers since the CPU can be open additional hours beyond the traditional postal service schedule.

Reaction was positive from the audience. Sheldon Goldberg, Greenbelt East Advisory Committee, said having a full-service, top of the line facility in Greenbelt East, a fast-growing part of the city and a retail operation under contract in Roosevelt Center seemed a win/win solution.

Sylvia Lewis said the CPU concept was somewhat like the “candy store post offices” she remembered fondly from England. She asked if local delivery would be as fast from the CPU and Haney said yes, that the postal service would pick up at the CPU on a regular schedule and Greenbelt deliveries would still be fast-tracked.

Haney mentioned the high quality of service provided by the Greenbelt post office employees and that it was a model facility in that light – but that the building was getting old.

Councilmember Leta Mach wanted to know about the cost to a business for a CPU. Haney said there were staff costs, the cost of installation and a surety bond to protect the business and customers. The CPU is provided by the postal service, which provides a great deal of assistance, Haney explained, in getting started.

He said that there were almost 4,600 CPUs in operation, not only in the United States but in other countries. He made these comments in response to some concern about quickly finding an appropriate business with a serious interest in the CPU.

Mayor Judith Davis wanted to know about the timetable for making this decision and building the new post office. Haney said that he was eager to reach a decision and begin construction, which could start in four months and be completed by the summer. Davis wanted to allow for more public comment and reaction. She scheduled this topic for further discussion and a final decision at the May 10 city council meeting.

Voter Verification

In response to a request from Ruth Kastner that council support action to require a paper trail to verify voting by the time of the next election, council opted to indicate its support for some type of verification but not to urge implementation in time for the November elections.

Youth Employment Program Initiated

Applications for the 2004 Summer Youth Employment Program are now available. The program is hosted by Prince George’s County for residents for a paid six-week summer job experience.

“This program provides great exposure to both our public and private sectors for our young people,” according to County Councilmember Douglas J.J. Peters, who represents Greenbelt. “I hope all the eligible youths of County Council District 4 will take advantage of this opportunity,” he concluded.

The goal of the county’s youth employment program is to provide an opportunity for a structured, supervised and quality work experience that builds skills and assists in career decision-making that may Councilmember Rodney Roberts spoke in support of verification. In response to the comment that this could cost more, he said, “It’s a priceless thing to have an honest election.”

Others raised concerns about the impact of a paper trail on voting by those visually impaired and still others thought that a hastily adopted system could generate more problems. A compromise was reached to go on record in support but to allow more time to develop a good approach.

School Funding

Council approved a Memorandum of Understanding to be established with the School Board in regard to school attendance and funding of Eleanor Roosevelt and Duval High Schools. The school board has decided to shift funds intended for Eleanor Roosevelt to Duval in light of anticipated growth at Duval and intentions to reduce student enrollment at ERHS from 2,800 to 2,200 to 2,400 students. Greenbelt’s Advisory Committee on Education recommended a Memorandum of Understanding to ensure that school attendance boundaries would be drawn so that Greenbelt children would attend Greenbelt schools, both now and in the future.

The city then agreed to support the classroom additions at Duval in light of projected demographic trends. The memorandum also guarantees that there will be no changes in the special programs offered at Eleanor Roosevelt and called for a reduction in the existing student-teacher ratio along with the reduction in overall attendance. Council added one more stipulation, that if Greenbelt student population grows, new classrooms rather than temporary classrooms would be added at Roosevelt.

Health Savings Plan

Council had a favorable reaction to the first presentation of information about a health savings plan for retirees offered by the city’s deferred compensation provider, the International City/County Management Association Retirement Corporation. As proposed, the plan would allow for employees to save for health care costs after their retirement by directing that a portion of the monies already contributed to the deferred compensation plan be put to this use. They could also contribute their own funds. After council approved the concept, City Manager Michael McLaughlin said staff would come back with a detailed plan for final approval.

St. Hugh's Family Fishing Tournament

by Austin Conaty

On Saturday, April 17, the St. Hugh Council of the Knights of Columbus sponsored the Third Annual Knights of Columbus Family Fishing Tournament. The first sunny and pleasant Saturday in many weeks turned out to be the perfect setting for the young anglers at Buddy Attick Park’s Greenbelt Lake. Once again, Chuck Hatcher gave pointers and instructed the young fishermen in baiting and casting.

The youngsters, from age four to 10, were a mix of last year’s participants and first-timers. Edward and Anna Brennan were welcomed to their first year at the tournament. All of the participants were accompanied by at least one parent.

Robert and Mark Bailey were the first two to catch those evasive bluegills. Mark and Robert were both awarded prizes for their efforts. Last year’s champion, Haley Hilliard, proved once again to the competition that she knows how to reel them in. Without a catch for most of the morning, Haley finished the tournament in a flurry of fishing expertise as she caught five bluegills in the final half hour of the tournament. The champion came out on top and, for the second year in a row, brought home the trophy.

All of the fish were quickly measured and then carefully returned to their home in the lake. Each participant received a certificate of participation and enjoyed snacks and drinks after a morning of fishing.

The Knights of Columbus is a Catholic family fraternal service organization founded in 1882. The St. Hugh Council was formed in May 1992. Today there are more than 1.6 million members of the Knights of Columbus in nearly 12,000 councils in the United States, Canada, Mexico, the Philippines and several other nations.

"Things That Fly" Mural Project for an Artful Afternoon

by Agnes Conaty

The chilly weather did not stop me from attending the Artful Afternoon at the Greenbelt Community Center on April 4. I came in with the early batch of participants who molded clay with the theme "Things That Fly" to be part of a mural which Artist-in-Residence Marla McLean hoped would be ready this summer. She told me we might see our mural pieces on a wall somewhere on the third floor of the Greenbelt Community Center.

I was thrilled with the theme of flying objects since I work at the College Park Aviation Museum. I made two planes, two birds and a butterfly. Others made a dragonfly, a kite, a flying truck, among others. The clay workshop was not new to me. In February I attended the Artful Afternoon where we created candle holders out of clay. We used basically the same techniques to do our mural pieces.

We cut a slab of clay with a

Artist-in-Residence Marla McLean shows artists young and old how to create flying objects out of clay.

thin wire. From that slab we took a small piece to shape out the flying object we had in mind. We used tools such as a rolling pin, a stamper, a pointed stick. We joined parts together using a soda ash solution. Marla and Pam, another clay artist-in-residence who helped out, made sure that our pieces were neither too thin nor too thick for mural purposes. They also loaned out some books on flying objects to give us some ideas on what to make.

When we were done with the clay molding we painted our pieces and allowed them to dry before they were glazed.

I was pleased to see several waves of people young and old who came for the workshop. When I was done with my clay projects I went down to the first floor to re-visit the Faculty Exhibition at the Art Gallery. There was a group of youngsters who gathered together to do the "i spy" contest related to the exhibit. I noticed that some of the art works I had seen a month ago at the exhibit were no longer around since the majority of the pieces were for sale.

I left the comfort of the heated center for the cold outside with warm thoughts running in my head. The Artful Afternoons had inspired me to dream of becoming one of the center's artists-in-residence and to come up with my own art exhibit some day.

Clay artists focus on making mural pieces that "fly."

Agnes Conaty paints her flying pieces: two airplanes, two birds and a butterfly.
